

Forest grouse hunt with Finnish spitz dogs

Forest grouse Hunt

NordGuide offers a traditional stalk hunt with special trained hunting dogs called Finnish spitz, in the forest country of Swedish Lapland. During this programme our accommodation will be in forest cabins close to the hunting grounds. The cabins offer wilderness comfort with wood fired stove, 4–6 beds. The unique environment located close to the world heritage “Laponia” offers an environment with birds well populated forests and vast high mountain areas a natural habitat of the great capercaillie and the black grouse.

Good hunt!

About Swedish Lapland

Norrbottnen is the northernmost county in Sweden, with a population of 250,000 people, 160,000 reindeer and 65,000 snowmobiles spread over a quarter of Sweden's total area. We represent 2.8 % of the Swedish population which totals nine million. Norrbotten has 14 local authorities or municipalities. In area, Kiruna is the biggest and Haparanda the smallest. Luleå Municipality has the largest population – 72,000 – while Arjeplog has the smallest with just 3,000. Norrbotten contains the highest mountain in Sweden, Kebnekaise (2,111 m), as well as the deepest lake, Hornavan (226 m). Three of Sweden's four state-protected rivers run through Norrbotten: the Torne, Kalix and Pite rivers.
